Part II

The German government's suggestions for rebuilding the war-destroyed districts are in the common interests of all peoples because the danger of a feeling of hatred and a cry for revenge will not disappear so long as this has not been done. The German government has, therefore—although not required by the peace treaty to do so—undertaken participation in the rebuilding of those districts. It declares itself ready to take part in the rebuilding and to supply German workmen under German authority.

"Upon this basis a German commission in September, 1919, made a hurried inspection of northern France. The German government is willing to undertake the rebuilding of the greater part of the destroyed regions in France. The German government has also considered the help required. It recommends in the common interest that an international syndicate be formed, in which all states shall participate in the restoration of the industrial and agricultural regions, as well as means of transportation and in the rebuilding of houses, former residences or for new settlers. This syndicate shall deal with contractors and engage laborers from all allied and neutral countries as well as from Germany. The profits from all work of this kind shall be reasonable and contractors and laborers shall be treated on an equal basis, whether Germans or other nationalities."

affected by the war, materials the value of which is reckoned as part of what is owing to reparations.

The note says that the reparations commission has not yet established what is to be delivered in the way of cattle, tools and raw materials, or what entire factories are to oe restored, but that Germany is ready to make these deliveries to the extent which her resources will permit.

The German government proposes a rather intricate plan of organization of its own industries in the various states of Germany for the purpose of making these deliveries.

Various other sub-sections affirm that a certain sum should be agreed upon after the payment of which Germany whould be completely free; that the payment of this sum should be arranged in various amounts; that a schedule should be worked out, and that it should not be absolutely regular in character, because it is impossible at the present time accurately to estimate the economic position of Germany for the next thirty years.

In explaining his triple plan of reparations Dr. Simons declared: "No settlement which can be made to yield results to the Allies in the near future can be made without detailed discussion of the German position.

"Under the treaty," asserted Dr. Simons, "Germany must pay in money or in kind. I believe that at first it will be necessary to pay in kind. Germany is quite prepared for the Allies' demand for real guaranties for the performance of any arrangement made that is compatible with German sovereignty."

After declaring that arrangements had already been made for furnishing materials to the devastated regions, the German Foreign Minister continued: "This system can work out only with the cooperation of the Allies. Therefore, I propose that a commission be appointed to study the best method for such cooperation. Germany really wants to carry out her obligations as

Section 1: The German government considers that the purpose of the present negotiations is to make a final settlement of their entire obligations, for reparations.

Section 2: The German government, knowing that it is obliged under the treaty to pay on May 1, 1920, 20,000,000 gold marks, considers that it has already paid not only that sum, but a much higher one, according to its accounts.

Denounced by "Vorwaerts"

The proposal to appoint an inter-Allied coal commission to allot Germany's coal cuts deep. "Vorwaerts" pronounces this "coal silavery," and says that if the claims of France take precedence, Germany will not have enough coal to maintain mational economical efficiency and progressive impoverishment must result. "Vorwaerts" asks: "Of what use are the labor protection paragraphs of the treaty and the international labor office if they, like the League of Nations, permit the brutal, militaristic, capitafistic character of the Entente policy?"

Evem the Independent Socialist organ "Freiheit," which hitherto has been ever ready to defend the Entente whenever possible, thereby striking at the German government, says that "only now does Germany begin to feel what it means to pass under the rod of imperialistic victors." The paper expresses the opinion that neither France nor Germany will profit by the threatened regime of force, because Germany is unable to maintain heavy industrial production without coal. The paper makes an appeal to the working classes of France and England to frustrate the "imperialistic policy" of their governments.
